

Safer Together - Child Safety Week (22-28 June)

14 May 2009

The Child Accident Prevention Trust (CAPT), the organiser of Child Safety Week, has released a free resources pack for all those working with children, young people or families. Child Safety Week 2009 is all about working together to keep children safer.

CAPT will be sending out a 28-page Ideas Booklet packed with information about preventing accidents, competitions, quizzes and advice about running an event, and a Safer, Together poster to professionals who join the mailing list. A brand new website, Child Safety Week, has also been developed to support anyone wishing to get involved, and bulk copies of the Ideas Booklet are available free of charge for distribution to local networks or groups of professionals (a charge is made for P&P only).

Commenting on the release of the new resources, Katrina Phillips, chief executive of the Child Accident Prevention Trust, said:

We are delighted to be able to offer such a fantastic resource to help professionals get involved with Child Safety Week. Our theme for the week is Safer, Together and we hope that these resources will offer professionals a fun and engaging way to get messages out to the families, children and young people they work with.
